DIVERSE & CONNECTED

Situated in Digbeth on the corner of Coventry and Oxford Street, The Walker Building, owned by Hartwell Plc, is ideally located within one of Birmingham's most vibrant regeneration areas.

Just a two-minute walk from the soon-to-be BBC Birmingham headquarters and adjacent to Phoenix Yard – the £100 million mixed-use scheme also owned by Hartwell Plc – the building benefits from a connected and dynamic environment.

Part of Our Future City Plan (OFCP), the area will see a major transformation to include additional trees, further street lighting, enhanced walking and cycle routes, as well as the arrival of the new Eastside metro extension.

Grand Central and The Bullring shopping centre are also located close by, providing occupiers with an unrivalled retail and leisure offering, whilst Birmingham New Street and Moor Street railway stations are also within easy walking distance.

STYLE & CHARACTER

Built in 1911 for nautical instrument inventors Thomas Walker & Son, The Walker Building is an inspirational and dynamic working environment with the fabric of ambition and entrepreneurial spirit ingrained throughout.

Set across two interconnected buildings, the Grade II listed former factory is accessed via a central courtyard, with a striking light-filled atrium leading to stylish workspaces from 1,100 - 10,523 sq ft.

Original features are in abundance as you navigate the space, with exposed interiors, high ceilings and authentic tiling details throughout. Additional building benefits include sheltered cycle storage and shower facilities for the active commuter, as well as onsite car parking with additional electric vehicle charging points.
